

IF YOU WANT YOUR PEOPLE TO THINK OF CHARLIE BROWN'S TEACHER, DO NOT HIRE KELLY TYLER AS YOUR SPEAKER.

If you want your people to hear more than wah-wah, wah-wah, wah-wah, give Kelly a call.

If you need a speaker to connect with and uplift left-brain thinkers – you know, the cerebral ones who love processes & details – Kelly Tyler is ideal.

Kelly's style is lively, not lecture; interactive, not intimidating; practical, not painful; and substantive, not silly.

Kelly is an award-winning speaker who brings solid business experience and education (including a BA from St. Mary's College, Notre Dame and an MBA from Rockhurst University), along with positive energy and updated material to each engagement. Clients rave about her motivational presentations and genuine demeanor.

Kelly is more than an entertaining speaker and author--she's also a smart business professional who makes time worthwhile. With her dynamic style, coupled with substance, your people will be engaged, energized and enthused about your event – and enthused with you, too.

MOST REQUESTED SESSIONS

LEADERSHIP:

USING YOUR POWER FOR GOOD

Leaders are not made by titles, they are made by followers. They are made by influence. This session shows leaders, whether they lead companies, departments, or sales teams, how to influence others using Emotional Intelligence (EI). Audiences become Emotionally Intelligent and socially savvy in a way which builds solid relationships inside and outside their organizations.

Kelly has studied EI for ten years and shows how the bottom line is affected when leaders are transformational. She shows audiences how to influence others for the good of their organizations and themselves.

C.P.R. FOR TODAY'S WORKPLACE

This session covers the C.P.R. needed in the workplace right now:

Confidence. Purpose. Resilience.

All three are essential to surviving, and thriving, in the ever-changing workplaces of today. All three are essential for leaders, sales reps, and professionals to display and evoke in those around them. All three are often scarce in workplaces right now.

Adversity is character-building and character-revealing, and this session gives the C.P.R. needed today.

ABOUT KELLY'S CLIENTS

Many clients in the Fortune 500, along with small businesses, universities, associations, and fellow entrepreneurs have been served by Kelly. Her client list includes:

- ◆ American Public Works Association
- ◆ Association of Association Executives
- ◆ Human Resources Management Association
- ◆ University of Missouri – Kansas City
- ◆ Midwest Research Institute
- ◆ Kansas University Physicians Inc.
- ◆ Bank of America
- ◆ Smith Barney
- ◆ Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce

Her first book, Secrets of Seasoned Professionals: They learned the hard way so you don't have to, has been received so well, it's often used as the employee handbook for leaders on their way up. The book helps bridge the gap between the generations in the workplace by spelling out for Generation Y what the Xers and Boomers expect.

Each month, Kelly publishes Workplace Wisdom: for leaders who inform, inspire, and influence. It is offered to all audience members, as a way to reinforce what they learned from Kelly. She also invites audience members to contact her with any questions about implementing changes after her sessions – free coaching is one of the many things audiences love! Audiences appreciate her attention to information retention, and they know their time was well spent.

IN THEIR OWN WORDS

"Kelly is a driven leader. She knows her stuff, but more importantly, she walks her talk. Kelly is a terrific person with top-notch character, a love for learning, and a results-oriented leader. Hire her with confidence."

"Kelly knows how business works. So you can rest easy knowing that her approach is realistic – you won't get ideas that just work in theory. Instead, she gives you common-sense solutions you can apply right away to get results. Kelly also knows what motivates people and how to inspire fresh thinking."

"I've worked with Kelly on joint presentations, and found her to be an excellent speaker, communicator, and teacher. She engaged the audience and provided quality curriculum. I would highly recommend her as a speaker and a trainer - and to be frank, I don't recommend that many people."

"Kelly is simply the best I have ever been associated with at what she does. Not only is she the consummate professional, she is as genuine a person as you will ever meet."
